Design

Take your metal ring and start with the base for your wreath: this is the foundation for your spring decoration.

Trim the stems slightly from the flowers. So that the flower stems are not visible, wrap the flowers in matching color silk paper . Make sure that the Paper completely covers the stems and is draped nicely. This gives your wreath a clean and professional look.

Tie the silk paper with a decorative satin ribbon . Thread a small scattered flower through the ribbon, before tying a pretty bow. These little details give the wreath that special something and make it an individual piece of jewelry.

Now attach the bunch of tulip flowers firmly to the ring using pearl thread. Wrap the yarn around the stems and secure it with a tight knot. If you want extra stability, you can use a drop of hot glue to fix the flowers even more firmly. Tie the tulip bouquet directly to the metal ring in this way.

Design the rest of the scatter decoration to your taste. You can paint them and creatively glue them on top of each other to create extra depth and texture. This gives the wreath that certain something and makes it look more lively.

Secure fastening

To ensure that your wreath hangs securely, the ring must be attached in two places, as the bouquet of tulips weighs more than the other side of the ring. attach it to two nails. For a secure hold, tie small suspensions made of jute to the ring. To prevent the jute hangers from slipping, fix them to the back of the ring with hot glue. This way, your wreath will stay securely in place even in a strong breeze.
